In treating these diseases, much depends on the state of general health in the individual before such specific medicines are administered. From want of such care, how often do we hear of the different preparations of mercury, bark, and iron, disagreeing with particular patients? In almost every instance this will be found to arise from some part of the alimentary canal being in a deranged state, which state ought to have been corrected previous to administering the specific remedy. The most useful medicines often fall into disrepute from want of such attention, whilst under other circumstances the dose must be changed, as well as the form of administering it. I do not mean to affirm that there are no individuals with whom particular medicines disagree. On the contrary, there are persons in whom cinchona, mercury, iron, and even milder drugs, as rhubarb, senna, and many saline medicines, have a decidedly pernicious effect. Such instances, however, are only to be considered as exceptions. Diseases, I have already remarked, assume an infinite variety of character, not only in persons of different ages and constitutions, but also in people living in different districts of a country, and in different ranks of society. The limited observations, therefore, which are made on the treatment of patients in the wards of an hospital, have often had the imputation of being incorrect from the same remedies having been used...
