Not illustrated. 1828 Excerpt: .into the old limited system of protecting Portugal. If, therefore, a retreat were actually resolved upon as absolutely necessary, he thought the army should only fall back upon Galicia, and the strong country about Astorga. But he said, in his reply to the General, that Leon and the two Castiles (with the exception of La Mancha and the city of Madrid) were the provinces least distinguished for a military, patriotic, or provincial spirit, in all Spain: the people had been passive during the late events, and had seen their country occupied successively by the strongest party, and that it was even difficult to blame them; for, living in open villages, in vast plains, destitute both of arms and of horses, they had neither the means of defence nor escape. That such a country must of necessity belong to the party which was superior in cavalry: still,...
