Brand New Book ***** Print on Demand *****.Excerpt from Home Letters Gertrude Cozad, on her return to Japan, writes as follows: Kobe, September 23, 1897. I think Japan has impressed me much as it would a newcomer this time. It seemed to me very miserable and cold and squalid, as I passed through the native quarter in Yokohama. There were various types of women to be seen on the streets. The well-dressed, placid, aimless, emotionless women, and among the poorer dressed women very rarely a happy face. They seemed either dull, or crushed and unhappy. That is the way the people on the street impressed me. But when I saw the girls who came down to the boat to meet Kajiro San, (A young Japanese girl who has just graduated from Mt. Holyoke, and returned to Japan with us, ) either students or teachers in the girls school, all of them with bright, animated, purposeful faces, I felt the power of a Christian life, of an education, of an enlarging and widening of thought and view. The life the missionaries live here does not..
