LETTER XIX Seventh Report from Holland to Aliston. The Lure of the Woman of Non-Conventional Views. Ellison Grove, November Seventeenth. Dear Ed: While Mabel looked after the many matters that had to be settled before our intended marriage in the fall, I indulged in the mistaken luxury of idling about her fathers extensive home-place, and reading a little in preparation for my entrance into the legal firm of Williston and Williston, where I had been offered a good position in the fall. For a time I delighted in watching my capable fiancee, as she moved from house to garden and from poultry-yard to apiary always with practical thoughts and words regarding the matter in hand. Only during our delightful horseback rides did our conversation fall into intimate lines. Then Mabel laid out this plan and that in whole-hearted delight, whereby her father was not to...
