Summary: Children learn about their bodies and get scientifically sound answers to questions they're likely to ask. The concepts are kept easy, and flap-up illustrations show many of the body's organs. These books will appeal to preschoolers through the early elementary grades. More than 30 full-color illustrations show the main parts of the body -- heart, lungs, digestive system, muscles, bones, and skin. Lift-flaps help kids locate organs in relation to other parts of the body.
